DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

2. Claims 1,4,5,7 and 10 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Chesley.

3. Chesley discloses all of the subject matter as set forth in the claims and is substantially identical to the invention as broadly recited. Some of the claimed elements clearly disclosed by the reference are: sequence indicia (20),and time indicia(18a).

4. Claims 11-13 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Kerpe.

5. Kerpe discloses all of the subject matter as set forth in the claims and is substantially identical to the invention as broadly recited. Kerpe inherently discloses the method as set forth.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

6. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

7. The factual inquiries set forth in Graham v. John Deere Co., 383 U.S. 1, 148 USPQ 459

(1966), that are applied for establishing a background for determining obviousness under 35

U.S.C. 103(a) are summarized as follows:

1. Determining the scope and contents of the prior art.
2. Ascertaining the differences between the prior art and the claims at issue.
3. Resolving the level of ordinary skill in the pertinent art.
4. Considering objective evidence present in the application indicating obviousness or nonobviousness.

8. Claims 3,6 and 9 as best understood are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Chesley.

9. In regard to claims 3,6 and 9 it would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to use the claimed indicia since it would only depend on the intended use of the assembly and the desired information to be displayed. Further, it has been held that when the claimed printed matter is not functionally related to the substrate it will not distinguish the invention from the prior art in terms of patentability. In re Gulack 217 USPQ 401, (CAFC 1983). The fact that the content of the printed matter placed on the substrate may render the device more convenient by providing an individual with a specific type of indicia does not alter the functional relationship. Mere support by the substrate for the printed matter is not the kind of functional relationship necessary for patentability. Thus, there is no novel and unobvious functional relationship between the printed matter and the substrate which is required for patentability.

10. Claims 14-17 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Kerpe.

11. Kerpe discloses the claimed invention except for the specific arrangement and/or content of indicia (printed matter) set forth in the claim(s). It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to use the claimed indicia since it would only depend on the intended use of the assembly and the desired information to be displayed. Further, it has been held that when the claimed printed matter is not functionally related to the substrate it will not distinguish the invention from the prior art in terms of patentability. In re Gulack 217 USPQ 401, (CAFC 1983). The fact that the content of the printed matter placed on the substrate may render the device more convenient by providing an individual with a specific type of indicia does not alter the functional relationship. Mere support by the substrate for the printed matter is not the kind of functional relationship necessary for patentability. Thus, there is no novel and unobvious functional relationship between the printed matter and the substrate which is required for patentability.

12. Claims 2 and 8 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Chesley in view of Kerpe.

13. Chesley discloses the claimed invention except for the use of a solar and lunar characters. Kerpe teaches that it is well known in the art to use solar and lunar characters to distinguish between day and night use. It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to provide Chesley with solar and lunar characters in the manner as taught by Kerpe in order to distinguish between day and night use.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

14. The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

Art Unit: 3722

15. Claim 6 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention. Claim 6 is vague and confusing.

Conclusion

16. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.
